Storytelling lessons using storybird.com

Your task is to write a story using the website storybird.com. Your teacher will give you instructions on how to use the site and give you a few tips and tricks to make your story/digital book as good as possible.

Have a look at these writing prompts. Pick one of them and with the person you were assigned to create a story.

a) Write about how magic is the norm. Some excel at it, some are only okay, and others are against it completely, despite being able to use it. Your main character is the latter.

b) Your character hears a language they've never heard uttered before that day...yet they understood every single word. Turns out, they're not really from where they think.

c) Write about how your character had been studying their whole life. With everyone in their family having gone to an ivy league school, your main character feels the pressure to get in and get A's. They even stoop to low levels to do so.

These are the requirements:

- Use various types of past tenses – remember the rules of sequence of tenses, reported speech etc.
- Create a story that is both interesting and has a strong structure (we spoke about this in one of the previous lessons)
- Length: 1000 words
- Remember to divide the story into chapters – Storybird.com allows you to do that!
- Also do not forget to utilize the graphic elements the tool offers.
- Have fun writing!
